COUNSELOR CONNECTION

Cooperation

Happy March! Our Character education focus this month is cooperation! Cooperation is working together with others for a shared goal or mutual benefit, involving joint action, assistance, or the willingness to do what is asked for a common purpose. It's about contributing individual effort for collective success, replacing competition with shared effort for positive outcomes.

Classroom Highlights

At Madden, we teach students that cooperation is working well together, listening to each other, and helping one another. Teamwork is an important part of Cooperation. Teamwork is when a group of people work together to complete a task. Whether working in a group, resolving a conflict, or taking ownership of their learning, students practice cooperation by making choices that reflect accountability and kindness. At home this trait can be reinforced by encouraging children to take responsibility, speak up respectfully, and look for ways to support others.

Don't forget to check out these stories that shows why cooperation is so important!
