I will say parts of the word and, if you put these parts together, you will be able to guess what I have behind my back." Pronounce the first sound and ending rhyme separately. For example, pen.If your child is able to blend the parts and come up with the word, show him or her the pen and repeat with another object or toy. If your child is not able to blend the first sound and ending rhyme, model the process. For example, b—at, bat. Repeat this practice, blending parts of words into whole words. Label Your Home- Use masking tape and a permanent marker to label names of objects in your home, such as bed, doll, table, and chair. This helps your child recognize letters and the names of everyday objects.

- Shopping for Sounds- As you and your child shop, have your child separate the sounds in the name of each item you put in your shopping basket, listening for beginning, middle, and ending sounds; for example, for a bag, your child would say b-a-g. Next, ask your child to blend sounds together to make a word. Say words one sound at a time; for example, you say m-i-l-k and your child says milk; you say c-a-n and your child says can.
- Count the Words- Have your child count the number of words in a spoken sentence. Say a sentence. (Example: "Let's go to the park.") Have your child tell you the number of words in the sentence. Switch roles, allowing your child to give you a sentence and have you say the number of words it contains.

Phonics:

- Personal Dictionary- Help your child create a personal word dictionary. This is a long-term project that's fun for rainy or snowy days. Help your child write a letter of the alphabet at the top of every page in a notebook or on separate sheets of paper. Ask your child to write down recently learned words on the page with the corresponding first letter.
- Letters to Friends- Encourage your child to write notes and letters to relatives and friends. Ask the people who receive the notes to respond with notes and letters of their own.
