Grading Period 1

Unit 1: Getting to Know You Estimated Date Range: 8/9/23-10/6/23

Unit Overview:

Students will become familiar with the vocabulary and expressions that are needed to conduct class in the target language, to greet other people correctly based on culturally accepted behaviors, and to exchange basic courtesy expressions. They will learn to introduce themselves and meet others, and tell a little about themselves, using their new language and cultural literacy skills and attitudes. Students will also learn how to express and ask about likes and dislikes regarding sports and school classes as well as give reasons for them. By the end of this Unit, students are expected to greet other people and maintain a short conversation about themselves by using the target language and the accepted behaviors used in the target culture. They also are expected to write simple sentences about their personal information with a person who speaks the target language.

- Encourage students to practice greeting and introducing themselves with anyone they know who speaks the target language.
- If they do not know anyone who speaks the target language, let them teach you how to introduce yourself to others appropriately.

Unit 2: Friends and Family

Estimated Date Range: 10/11/23-12/15/23

Unit Overview:

In this unit, students will learn to talk about their nuclear family (the one that lives in their home), their extended family, their friends and their pets. They will describe their friends and family members in terms of physical and personality characteristics. Students will also learn about characteristics of families in other cultures and how families are the same and different from one culture to the next. They will tell where they go and what they do in their free time with their friends and family, and how that compares to families in the target culture. Finally, students will talk about typical family events, such as birthdays and other celebrations, where those family events take place and how they are celebrated, here and in the target culture. Students will build on this knowledge of free time activities as they move into unit 3 and begin making plans to go out with friends.

- Share family history with your child, such as grandparents' and great grandparents' names.
- Tell about friends you have that are as close as family; not everyone has a happy family situation, so celebrate those close friendships with your child.

Unit 3: A Typical Teenage Life

Estimated Date Range: 1/4/24-2/15/24

Unit Overview:

At the end of this unit, students will be able to discuss what they like and don't like to do (both at school and during free time), as well as when and how often they do these things. They will also talk about what they did last weekend and what they are going to do next weekend, using very basic memorized chunks of language. Students will compare their daily life with activities of other students in the target culture. Finally, they will use the language to extend, accept and decline invitations, giving suitable excuses and negotiating different venues, times and/or days.

Students will build on these skills in the next unit when they are required to talk about what they like to have and buy, and where they prefer to go shopping for the items they like.

- Encourage students to seek out opportunities to interact with the target language, even if it is not on this topic. Encourage them to find activities they enjoy in the target language, so that they will be motivated to learn more.
- Remind students to be patient, that language learning takes time. They won't be able to say everything in this new language that they can say in English or their first language.

Estimated Date Rar	nge Grading Period 3: 2/20/24-3/8/24

Estimated Date Range Grading Period 4: 3/18/24-4/5/24

Unit Overview:

Students will begin the unit by describing what is in their closet, including brands, where things are from, and what influences their decision to purchase certain items. They will distinguish between items they want and items they need, and discuss at what point a need becomes a want. They will compare their shopping habits, fashion preferences and favorite possessions with those of people around the world. They will look at prices of goods around the world and discuss how the exchange rate affects the real value of things. By the end of the unit, students will be able to function in a real-world shopping scenario in order to express their needs, wants, and preferences while shopping. Additionally, students will be able to compare how the things they spend their money on are similar to or different than the items typically purchased by teens in the target culture.

At home connections:

 Encourage students to look at online shopping sites from the target culture. Discuss similarities and differences with them.

Parent Resources

The following resources provide parents with ideas to support students' understanding. For sites that are password protected, your child will receive log-in information through their campus.

Resource	How it supports parent and students
Mosaik 1	This is the German textbook. While our curriculum does not align to the textbook, it can
IVIOSAIK 1	be used as a resource for students who might want/need additional practice.
This is Language	This is an online platform that has videos of native speakers talking about a variety of
This is Language	topics, many of which are aligned to our curriculum topics.
Duolingo	This site provides students with extra practice in a variety of languages. It is not aligned
Duolingo	with the curriculum, but could be a great way to reinforce the basics.
Multilingual Books	This site has links to foreign newspapers and magazines. Reading in the target language is one of the best ways to increase proficiency with the language.

Instructional Model

The structures, guidelines or model in which students engage in a particular content that ensures understanding of that content.

Framing the Lesson

This is the opening phase of the lesson that will initially engage the student. Frame the lesson with something interesting and culturally relevant, recycle/review key concepts, or present a thought provoking question to be answered during the lesson.

Language Experience

This phase of the lesson is where the comprehensible input occurs. Students should have the opportunity to engage with the language in multiple ways, both listening and reading.

Structured Communicative Practice

In this phase, students need structured communicative activities (spoken and written) in order to practice the new language from the previous phase.

Activities should be appropriately scaffolded for student success.

Assessment and Reflection

In this final phase of the lesson, students will show what they can do with the language through output, either written or spoken. In this phase most scaffolds should be removed, and students should reflect on what they can and cannot yet do, and how well.

Formative Tasks & Assessments (Check for Understanding)

The World Language Instructional Model has two key components: the core practices and the lesson cycle. The six core practices reflect current best practice in language teaching, as well as the expectations from our state and national standards. While teachers will not necessarily accomplish all six every day, they should incorporate them all into their lessons on a regular basis. The lesson cycle is where all of the core practices come together in a cohesive manner. The teacher begins by framing the lesson, either drawing on students' prior knowledge, or priming the pump for what is to come. During Language Experience, the focus is on comprehensible input, as it is through input that language proficiency is achieved. During Structured Communicative Practice, students get to engage with the language through structured opportunities for output. This is when they and the teacher can see if they have been able to internalize the new language from the input phase. Finally, students will reflect and assess their understanding
